Conflict + Society

A centre devoted to studying all aspects of armed conflict on society, from civilians and military personnel to groups, institutions, economies, laws, literature and public policies.

Competitive advantage

The Centre maintains collaborative partnerships with key stakeholders, including:

- Australian Federal Departments of Defence, Veterans' Affairs, Foreign Affairs and Trade
- Australian Defence Force and their various research and development centres
- National institutions such as the Australian War Memorial, National Archives of Australia, and the National Library of Australia
- King's College London, UK
- Arizona State University, USA
- United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime

Impact

The Centre holds public symposia to develop and enhance the national dialogue on conflict and security. These events are designed for a diverse audience: defence, industry, federal government, academia, historical associations and secondary schools.

Capabilities and resources

The Centre is able to bring together multi-disciplinary expertise in the areas of:

- Military History: Australia's Vietnam War, Australian Naval History
- Australian Imperial Force
- Military Operations: Space / Land / Air / Sea / Cyber
- Regulation and Governance: Ethics / Moral Injury / Law / International Relations / Public Policy
- Society: Literature
